Old England and the slave traders of New England brought to their shores.

PRESSURE.—A colored member of the Virginia convention named Norton announces himself a candidate to represent the first Congressional district of Virginia in the Congress of the United States. He slates that he becomes a candidate because of the Irresistible pressure brought to bear upon him in his district to consent to take the position. It is thought that other colored members of the convention, among them the Rev. Burwell Toler, who now represents in the Virginia convention the nalive caunty of Patrick Henry and Henry Clay, may also be induced to consent to such a seerilice of private interests and personal dignity as to take a position in Congress, provided a pressure is brought to bear in that direction of an irresistible character.
